MLK Jr Day of Service at Cedar Ridge Preserve

Activity:	Since 1994, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Day has been celebrated as a "day on, not a day off," encouraging individuals, families, and groups across the country to honor Dr. King's vision of community through volunteerism. By participating in MLK Day service activities, you're not only contributing to the welfare of others but also carrying forward the principles of peace and civic engagement that Dr. King championed. (Volunteer.gov, 2025) DETAILS: . We will Volunteers will work on restoring the trout lily habitat on Cedar Brake and Trout Lily trails. Tasks will primarily include pulling the invasive privet from the work area. We'll be using sharp shooter shovels, loppers, and uprooters to clear the area. The work is a short hike away about .5 miles there and .5 miles back. Gloves available! Bring your own favorite gloves and tools if you have them! Trout lilies like moist soil, but definitely need the winter sun to gather enough energy to pop up through the ground in the spring. You'll notice that our work areas are near creeks. Good place for trout lilies and privet(unfortunately) to grow. By clearing the wall of privet, we hope to encourage more lily growth.

NTMN at the Learning Gardens

Activity:	Join us for NTMN at the Learning Gardens—a one-day gathering for Master Naturalists to connect, learn, and enjoy time in nature. We'll co-create the day's schedule based on the interests and expertise of those who plan to come, whether it's leading a short hike, sharing a talk on migration, exploring insects, or offering insights into land stewardship. The Learning Gardens offers the perfect backdrop with trails to wander, an outdoor kitchen for shared meals, and both a stage and outdoor classroom for teaching, sharing, and creating. Camping is optional for those who'd like to come on Friday 2/27 or camp on the night of 2/28. The Learning Gardens is located on the back side of a 90-acre farm near Athens, Texas, about an hour east of Dallas. This unique space is an off-grid permaculture site and outdoor learning center created by NTMN member Susie Stillwell. This is a free event open to NTMN members and families. Learn more about the Learning Gardens here: www.lgetx.org Please complete the registration form and Susie will be in touch!
